Cultural impacts on the United States from immigration

Abstract

The main focus of this thesis is to show how immigrants have impacted the culture of the United States over the last 200 years. This is a geographic, computer interactive and user friendly tool which would be able to help sociology students attain a visual learning experience. The tool displays a color-coded map of the United States where each of the colors represents a section of immigrants that have influenced a state or city. Important cities of various regions have also been identified on the map.
