"I'm looking for someone to help build a semi-complex forum type website from scratch. The person selected would serve as CTO and act as the company's number two. If the candidate would rather work for a set income, they would be declining the CTO position/any equity. Send a resume/any past work to marklaturno@hotmail.com. If you are selected, we'll set a meeting to discuss the details of the company and see whether a partnership would be mutually beneficial. Regardless of whether you decide to take the job/are offered the position, you will be given $50 for the meeting. You will be required to sign a confidentiality agreement at the onset of the meeting.

We have access to investors and a business plan in place.

Ideal candidate will be located in southern California for the summer."